In line with expectations, the US Federal Reserve lowered its key interest rates by 25 basis points at its last meeting of 2024, bringing the target range for the federal funds rate down to 4.25% - 4.50%. For this year, the members of the Monetary Committee expect only 2 further rate cuts, given that both inflation and the labor market are proving more resilient than previously expected. In the eurozone, the European Central Bank also cut the deposit rate by 25 basis points as planned at the December meeting. Due to weak growth in the eurozone, interest rates could continue to fall over the course of this year.

In the United States, the resilience of both growth and inflation pushed long-term interest rates back up to the highest levels reached during the year. The yield to maturity on the 10-year US Treasury note rose from 4.17% to 4.57%. In Europe, bond yields followed the trend of their US counterparts, despite significantly weaker economic activity. The benchmark 10-year rate rose from 2.09% to 2.36% in Germany, from 2.89% to 3.19% in France, from 3.28% to 3.52% in Italy and from 2.79% to 3.06% in Spain. Over 2024 as a whole, the JP Morgan EMU Government Bond Index rose by 1.8%. At the end of December, the average yield to maturity in the bond portfolio was 2.1% (2.7% for the benchmark) and the modified duration was 2.7 (7.3 for the benchmark).

After a euphoric November, stock markets consolidated their gains in December, ending the year on a soft note. Over 2024 as a whole, however, most equity indices recorded significant gains, for the second time in succession. For example, the MSCI All Country World Index Net Total Return expressed in euros fell by 0.7% in December to end the year with a total gain of 25.3%, compared with 18.1% in 2023. At the regional level, the S&P 500 in the USA fell by 2.5% (in USD) over the month, the Stoxx 600 Europe by 0.5% (in EUR) and the MSCI Emerging Markets index by 0.5% (in USD). Only Japan's Topix, buoyed by the yen's weakness, rose by 3.9% (in JPY). At sector level, communication services, consumer discretionary and technology posted the best monthly performances, while energy, real estate and materials recorded negative trends.

In December, the euro fell against the dollar from 1.06 to 1.04, briefly breaking out of the 1.05-1.12 fluctuation corridor in place since early 2023. More cautious comments by US monetary officials regarding the potential for interest rate cuts in 2025 have accentuated the euro's recent downtrend. Since Trump's presidential election victory in November, precious metals prices have stalled. In December, the price of an ounce of gold fell by 0.7%, from USD 2643 to USD 2625. The price of an ounce of silver fell by 5.6%, from USD 30.6 to USD 28.9.

Within the bond portfolio, duration was slightly lowered by selling the 2035 maturity.

Within equities, a position was initiated in Tokyo Electron, Japan's largest supplier of semiconductor production equipment. The position in Pernod Ricard, a world leader in wines and spirits, was strengthened.

In 2024, the main negative contributors to performance were an underweight position in equities and defensive sector positioning in anticipation of a recession during the year. The recession assumption was abandoned in October. The main positive contributor to performance was the high exposure to precious metals.
