Performance

Indexed value (until 31-07-2025) - Source: Robeco

Performance

Based on transaction prices, the fund's return was 2.32%.

Robeco BP Global Premium Equities trailed the MSCI World Index during July, as the index ticked higher while the fund was flat for the month. Both stock selection and sector allocation detracted, with sector allocation the primary detractor. Within sector allocation, the fund's underweight in information technology was the top detractor, while overweight in both consumer staples and healthcare detracted as well. From a stock selection perspective, information technology and consumer discretionary were the two top detractors. Within information technology, not holding NVIDIA and Microsoft detracted as the stocks performed well, up 13% and 7%. Fund holding Capgemini declined 12% during the month. Within consumer discretionary, Barratt Redrow moved lower, down 20%, while not holding Amazon (+7%) also resulted in a detractor. On a positive note, stock selection in healthcare and materials helped offset detractors slightly. Regionally, North America was the top detractor for the month, along with the United Kingdom and Europe, while Japan added value.

Market development

Global equity markets climbed higher in July, as investors turned their attention toward a risk-on environment, favoring US equities and growth stocks amid a strong earnings season. Despite a continued flurry of geopolitical duress, tariff turmoil and policy uncertainty, markets ended the month on a high note with seven of 11 sectors climbing higher, led by information technology, industrials and communication services.

Expectation of fund manager

Markets performed well in July, as earnings reports were fairly strong for the second quarter. Despite a slight resurgence of market concentration, value-oriented strategies look favorable compared to the growth side of the market, which continues to see valuations climb higher, reaching levels similar to (if not in excess of) the tech bubble. As always, we remain focused on selecting companies from the bottom-up that reflect Boston Partners' three-circle characteristics – attractive valuations, solid business fundamentals, and identifiable catalysts.

Top 10 largest positions

Nordea exited the top ten in July, while JP Morgan Chase entered the top ten.
