Performance

Indexed value (until 31-05-2025) - Source: Robeco

Performance

Based on transaction prices, the fund's return was 5.25%.

Robeco BP Global Premium Equities slightly trailed the MSCI World Index in May, driven by sector allocation, while stock selection added value. Sector allocation hurt returns in May, with the fund's 15% underweight in technology weighing on returns as the sector recovered from a difficult start to 2025 with a double digit return. Additionally, the fund's underweight exposure to other high multiple sectors was hurtful, as communication services and consumer discretionary both outpaced the market. Lastly, with the market in a risk-on mode, the fund's overweight exposure to defensive staples detracted as the sector lagged the market by over 4%. Stock selection added to performance, primarily in healthcare and financials. Sandoz Group and Hikma both added to performance, while avoiding Eli Lilly also helped relative results in healthcare. In financials, top contributors mainly stemmed from Europe/the UK, with AIB Bank, NatWest, ING and Commerzbank posting strong results. Regionally, the fund added value in every area outside of North America.

Market development

Global equity markets advanced in May on the back of positive developments on tariffs and a stronger than expected earnings season finishing, sending investor sentiment into a risk-on mode. Markets were led by technology, communication services, industrials and consumer discretionary, while defensive segments such as utilities, healthcare and real estate lagged in May. Regionally, North America led, though every region was up at least 4% in May.

Expectation of fund manager

Markets responded well in the month of May, with a risk-on environment pushing all equity markets higher. High valuations in some areas of the market, geopolitical tensions, tariffs and concerns over US fiscal policy are some of the likely headwinds going forward. Value-oriented strategies look favorable as investors focus on what they are paying for the underlying fundamentals of a business. As always, we remain focused on selecting companies from the bottom-up that reflect Boston Partners' three-circle characteristics – attractive valuations, solid business fundamentals, and identifiable catalysts.
