PORTFOLIO MANAGERS COMMENTS

Sextant PME rose by +0.3% in February, compared with a decline of 1.3% for its benchmark index.

The fund's performance was supported by the continuation of the excellent momentum in Westwing shares (+25%). In addition, industrial companies such as Derichebourg (+18%) and SAF-Holland (+17%) benefited from the industrial recovery that is beginning to take hold, particularly in Europe. Finally, Nordrest, the Swedish catering company whose activity is largely linked to the defence sector, reported excellent results. The share price rose by more than 20% following the release.

The three main detractors are linked to concerns regarding artificial intelligence, which triggered a panic in financial markets. Wavestone, the consulting firm, fell by 20%. Aubay, in IT services, declined by 24%. Finally, Norconsult, a specialist in infrastructure project architecture, dropped by 9%. Although the current outlook for all these companies points to acceleration, investors are wondering whether LLMs and AI agents could eventually replace these activities, thereby lowering their terminal value. For our part, while acknowledging the productivity gains generated by AI, we observe that the hiring of computer engineers is accelerating.
