Past performance is not a reliable indicator of future results and can be misleading. As the fund is denominated in a currency that may differ than an investor's base currency, changes in the rate of exchange may have an adverse effect on prices and incomes. Performance is shown net of fees and expenses for the relevant share class over the reference period. All performance figures reflect the reinvestment of dividends and do not take into account the commissions and costs incurred on the issue and redemption of shares, if any. Individual costs are not taken into account and would have a negative impact on the performance. With an investment amount of EUR 1,000 over an investment period of five years, the investment result in the first year would be reduced by the front-end load of up to EUR 50 (5%) as well as by additional individual custody charges. In subsequent years, the investment result would also be reduced by the individual custody account costs incurred. The reference benchmark of this class is used for performance comparison purposes only (dividend reinvested). The funds is actively managed. No benchmark is directly identical to a fund, thus the performance of a benchmark is not a reliable indicator of future performance of the fund to which it is compared. There can be no assurance that a return will be achieved or that a substantial loss of capital will not be incurred.

Market review

Global equity markets fell sharply in March, with the MSCI World Index declining 6.4%, as escalating Middle East tensions weighed on oil prices, inflation expectations, and growth prospects. Healthcare underperformed the broader market, with the MSCI World Health Care Index declining 8.3%. Against this backdrop, the Bellevue Healthcare Strategy (Lux) Fund – I shares returned -8.4%, a small underperformance versus its benchmark.

All healthcare subsectors posted negative returns in March, though with notable dispersion. Healthcare IT (-5.5%), biotechnology (-5.8%), and pharmaceuticals were the relative outperformers, albeit pharmaceuticals failed to exhibit their typical defensive characteristics. Life science tools (-7.5%), healthcare services (-9.8%), and medtech (-12.1%) lagged. Declines were broad-based across regions: US (-7.8%), Asia (-8.8%), Europe (-9.8%), and emerging markets (-10.0%).

The month opened with the US attack on Iran, which rapidly led to a closure of the Strait of Hormuz. This sent oil prices up by 60%. The uncertainty on duration and magnitude of the conflict, which increased during the month, weighed on markets, yields (US 10 year +36 bp) and rate cuts (first Fed rate cut repriced from summer 2026 to autumn 2027) in particular. Deteriorating financing prospects and increasing supply chain complexity weighed most on industrial and materials sectors performing most negatively over the month.

The month was shaped by three themes: significant clinical readouts, continued momentum in IgA nephropathy (IgAN), and a reacceleration in M&A activity. Boston Scientific's CHAMPION-AF trial supported the Watchman platform in a broader first-line setting, while United Therapeutics' TETON-1 readout was among the quarter's most consequential pulmonary hypertension catalysts. Johnson & Johnson / Protagonist's Icotyde received FDA approval, and BridgeBio delivered encouraging Phase III data in achondroplasia. In IgAN, Otsuka advanced the sibeprenlimab launch and Vertex reported positive Phase III data for povetacept, reinforcing our conviction that nephrology remains one of the most attractive areas in specialty care. Strategic activity picked up, with Eli Lilly acquiring Centessa, Biogen acquiring Apellis, and Gilead acquiring Arcellx.

Top absolute performers in the fund included Dr Sulaiman (+12%; positive patient numbers in Q4 2025, and the stock has been supported by a strong oil-linked Saudi equity market in March), Otsuka (+0.9%; strong Voyxact IgAN launch), and Galderma (+0.9%; strong FY 2026 guidance).

Top relative positive contributors included Eli Lilly (underweight; +86 bp; -13%; GLP-1 pricing concerns), Amgen (not held; +23 bp; -9%), and Medtronic (underweight; +16 bp; -10%). Top relative negative contributors included Celltrion (overweight; -35 bp; -22%; Korean market exposure to the Middle East conflict), Sandoz (overweight; -32 bp; -13%), and Idexx Labs (overweight; -29 bp; -14%; macro headwinds and weak veterinary visits).

Positioning & outlook

The near-term backdrop remains uncertain, with elevated oil prices, higher-for-longer rates, and unresolved geopolitical tensions weighing on risk assets broadly. Rate sensitivity and supply chain complexity warrant vigilance, though healthcare's defensive characteristics should provide relative resilience should conditions deteriorate further.

The structural case for healthcare remains intact and increasingly compelling. Regulatory uncertainty has materially eased, valuations remain near decade lows, and biopharma fundamentals continue to stabilize. Healthcare contributes ~18% of US GDP yet represents only ~10% of the S&P 500, a disconnect we expect to narrow over time.

Biotechnology continues to transition toward cash-generative, launch-driven business models, while large-cap pharma faces a biologic patent cliff between 2029 and 2032 and holds over USD 200 bn in acquisition capacity, underpinning a multi-year M&A cycle.

The fund maintains a high-conviction, global approach, positioned to capture the structural recovery and near-term catalyst-driven opportunities.

We have classified this product as risk class 4 on a scale of 1 to 7, where 4 corresponds to a medium risk class. The risk of potential losses from future performance is classified as medium. In the event of very adverse market conditions, it is possible that the ability to execute your redemption request may be impaired. The calculation of the risk and earnings profile is based on simulated/historical data, which cannot be used as a reliable indication of the future risk profile.
