Europe's stock markets made further gains in February (Stoxx Europe 600 +3.86%, Stoxx Europe Small 200 +1.93%), buoyed up by solid earnings releases and encouraging macroeconomic indicators, such as the euro zone's PMI which reached 51.9 in February. The market rally concealed a high degree of volatility, with many sectors being sold off because of concerns about the disruption caused by new AI tools, such sectors including software, media and financial services. On the other hand, sectors boasting tangible assets that are relatively immune to AI disruption (utilities, telecoms, energy, real estate) outperformed. We also continue to keep a close eye on developments both in the Middle East and with regard to tariffs.

Mandarine Unique made gains and performed in line with its benchmark index thanks to its financial stocks (Euronext, Storebrand and Ackermans & Van Haaren) and very strong results from Kingspan and Moncler. However, it was undermined by Interpump after it issued highly conservative sales growth guidance for 2026. Likewise, certain stocks were unfairly penalised for being at risk of AI disruption (Finacobank, Auto1).

The main investments we made in February included Tonies, a German educational audio platform enjoying rapid growth in the USA; Halma, a UK firm boosted by its exposure to photonic equipment for data centres; and R&S, a Swiss group specialising in the production of power transformers. On the other hand, we took profits on Alm Brand (insurance, Denmark) and sold our positions in Stroer and Fielmann as they lack stock catalysts for the coming months
