Past performance is not a reliable indicator of future results and can be misleading. As the fund is denominated in a currency that may differ than an investor's base currency, changes in the rate of exchange may have an adverse effect on prices and incomes. Performance is shown net of fees and expenses for the relevant share class over the reference period. All performance figures reflect the reinvestment of dividends and do not take into account the commissions and costs incurred on the issue and redemption of shares, if any. Individual costs are not taken into account and would have a negative impact on the performance. With an investment amount of EUR 1,000 over an investment period of five years, the investment result in the first year would be reduced by the front-end load of up to EUR 50 (5%) as well as by additional individual custody charges. In subsequent years, the investment result would also be reduced by the individual custody account costs incurred. The reference benchmark of this class is used for performance comparison purposes only (dividend reinvested). The fund is actively managed. No benchmark is directly identical to a fund, thus the performance of a benchmark is not a reliable indicator of future performance of the fund to which it is compared. There can be no assurance that a return will be achieved or that a substantial loss of capital will not be incurred.

Market review

Asia-Pacific equities rose 13.2% during the month, led by South Korea's KOSPI, which gained 34.1%, followed by Japan's Nikkei 225, which advanced 17.9%. Other markets also improved: China's CSI 300 rose 9.2%, Australia's S&P/ASX 200 gained 6.6% and Hong Kong's Hang Seng Index added 4.1%.

The Asia-Pacific healthcare sector was broadly flat in April, underperforming the broader market as investors shifted toward higher-risk sectors. While the situation between the US and Iran remains uncertain, positive signals – including a cease-fire and openness to negotiations – helped lift market sentiment. The Bellevue Asia Pacific Healthcare Fund declined 0.4%, slightly underperforming its benchmark.

Wuxi Apptec (+15.8%), Hoya (+11.3%), Innovent (+6.1%), Otsuka (+5.1%) and Celltrion (+4.4%) were among the top contributors to the fund's absolute performance. Wuxi Apptec delivered a strong beat in its Q1 2026 results, supported by high-quality growth and margin expansion. A potential full-year guidance upgrade is expected next quarter. Hoya maintained strong momentum, underpinned by healthy fundamentals and a beat in its Q4 2025 results. Innovent also posted a strong Q1 results 2025, with product sales growing by more than 50% yoy, keeping the company on track to meet its 2027 target. Otsuka reported successful Q1 results, with Voyxact, a key kidney drug, generating more than twice the expected sales. Important clinical data for the drug is also expected to be presented at upcoming conferences, further boosting investor confidence. Celltrion moved higher as management became more conservative on guidance, increasing the potential for upside in upcoming results.

Cochlear (-42.0%), Astellas (-10.1%), CSL (-7.8%), Takeda (-5.5%) and Chugai (-4.3%) were the largest detractors from the fund's absolute performance. Cochlear declined sharply as growth in its US business slowed, despite the launch of Nexa, the company's first new cochlear hearing implant in 15 years. In response, management substantially lowered its 2026 guidance. Astellas, which performed well last year, came under pressure as investors took profits. In addition, while Q4 2025 results exceeded estimates, the beat was driven primarily by royalty income rather than strategic brands. CSL fell after the US military scrapped its annual flu-shot mandate. Takeda was weaker despite the absence of a specific company event, as investors locked in gains after the stock's previous advance. Chugai dropped sharply in a single day after the early launch data for orforglipron, an oral obesity drug, failed to clear the high bar set by competitors. However, given the early stage of development, more time is needed to assess the implications.

Positioning & outlook

Asia is the world's most dynamic growth region, home to more than half of the global population. By 2050, Asian emerging markets are projected to account for over 50% of global GDP. As household incomes rise, economic growth in many Asian countries is expected to shift from manufacturing toward services. A growing middle class is driving stronger demand for modern medicine, with healthcare increasingly ranking as a top priority. Billions are being invested in infrastructure, technology, and research to modernize healthcare systems across emerging markets, expanding access to quality care. At the same time, rapid population aging is further boosting demand. In 25 years' time, China alone is expected to have nearly 400 million people over the age of 65, creating a significant need for advanced healthcare services and medicines.

Japan, often referred to as «the world's demographic laboratory,» has been a champion of cutting-edge innovation for decades. The country holds technology leadership in fields ranging from therapeutic antibody development and immunotherapy to robotics, digitalization, diagnostics, and medical imaging systems.

The fund provides defensive exposure to Asian emerging markets while offering attractive opportunities in the region's technology leaders. Its investments span the entire healthcare value chain, from generic drug manufacturers and biotechnology firms to medical device makers and digital health specialists.

Risk and return profile acc. to SRI

The Fund’s objective is to generate an attractive return over a long-term horizon. It is therefore particularly suited to investors with an investment horizon of at least 5 years who want to diversify their portfolio with selective exposure to the healthcare sector in Asia and who are willing to accept the risks typically associated with stocks in this sector.

We have classified this product as risk class 4 on a scale of 1 to 7, where 4 corresponds to a medium risk class. The risk of potential losses from future performance is classified as medium. In the event of very adverse market conditions, it is possible that the ability to execute your redemption request may be impaired. The calculation of the risk and earnings profile is based on simulated/historical data, which cannot be used as a reliable indication of the future risk profile. The classification of the fund may change in future and does not constitute a guarantee. Even a fund classed in category 1 does not constitute a completely risk-free investment. There can be no guarantee that a return will be achieved or that a substantial loss of capital will not be incurred. The overall risk exposure may have a strong impact on any return achieved by the fund or subfund. For further information please refer to the fund prospectus or PRIIP-KID.

Liquidity risk

The fund may invest some of its assets in financial instruments that may in certain circumstances reach a relatively low level of liquidity, which can have an impact on the fund’s liquidity.

Risk arising from the use of derivatives

The fund may conclude derivatives transactions. This increases opportunities, but also involves an increased risk of loss.

Currency risks

The fund may invest in assets denominated in a foreign currency. Changes in the rate of exchange may have an adverse effect on prices and incomes.

Operational risks and custody risks

The fund is subject to risks due to operational or human errors, which can arise at the investment company, the custodian bank, a custodian or other third parties.

Benefits

- Access to defensive growth – Asia’s emerging countries are facing aging populations and changing lifestyles.
- An interesting combination of investments in Asian emerging markets and Japanese cutting-edge technology.
- Broad spread across different sectors and company sizes in the Asia-Pacific healthcare industry.
- Attractive valuations compared with the projected medium to long-term growth.

Inherent risks

- The fund actively invests in equities. Equities are subject to price fluctuations and so are also exposed to the risk of price losses.
- Investing in emerging markets entails the additional risk of political and social instability.
- The fund invests in foreign currencies, which means a corresponding degree of currency risk against the reference currency.
- The fund may invest in China A equities. This entails the risk of supervisory changes, volume caps and operating restrictions which may lead to a higher counterparty risk.
- The fund may invest a proportion of its assets in financial instruments that might under certain circumstances have a relatively low level of liquidity, which can in turn affect the fund’s liquidity.

You can find a detailed presentation of the risks faced by this fund in the “Special Investment Risks” section of the sales prospectus.
