Investment policy

The objective is to achieve a performance of more than 2.50% annualized net of fees as of June 30, 2022 over an investment horizon of 5 years, through exposure to the market for bonds with maturities close to that date. This objective is based on the assumption that the Fund's units will be held throughout the recommended investment period and on the market assumptions made by the Management Company. The Fund may invest in bonds and other monetary debt securities issued by private or public and similar issuers, to which the net assets will be permanently exposed between 0% and 100%. Investments will take into account environmental, social and governance criteria.

Fund managers comment

In June, geopolitics remained a primary concern for the markets, which saw a marked resurgence of optimism following the signing of a memorandum of understanding between the US and Iran. The prospect of the Strait of Hormuz reopening triggered a sharp fall in oil prices, marking their steepest decline since the first quarter of 2020, when the pandemic broke out. Brent crude oil ended the month below $73 per barrel, close to its pre-conflict level. This sharp decline led to a downward revision of central banks' interest rate projections and fuelled the rally in sovereign yields, particularly in the Eurozone. The German two-year yield remained stable at 2,53%, while the ten-year yield fell back below 3% to 2,88%. The ECB unanimously raised its key rates by 25bp, bringing the deposit rate to 2,25%. This decision confirms the ECB's priority of tackling inflation. The central bank also raised its inflation forecasts to 3,0% for 2026, 2,3% for 2027 and 2,0% for 2028. Christine Lagarde left the door open for a further rate hike, and the ECB will remain highly dependent on developments in the conflict and on economic data, but its 12-month inflation forecast was lowered to 3,5% in line with trends in energy prices. However, business surveys in services remained in contraction territory, despite a slight rebound. Sovereign spreads widened over the month, to 79bp for the OAT-Bund spread and 77bp for the 10-year BTP-Bund spread. In the US, the Federal Reserve kept its key rates unchanged within the range [3,50%-3,75%], in line with expectations. The new projections reflect persistent inflationary pressures, and yields moved higher over the month, with the two-year yield up by +17bp. As regards macroeconomic data, economic activity remains broadly resilient, and the release of the PCE inflation figure for May was reassuring and in line with expectations. S&P confirmed the United States' rating at AA+, with a stable outlook.

Credit spreads remained stable or tightened slightly: -1bp for IG credit, -1bp for T2 financial bonds, 0bp for IG hybrid securities, -10bp for HY corporate credit and -14bp for AT1 financial bonds (in euros). Asset classes delivered positive performance, driven by a favourable interest rate environment and, to a lesser extent, by spread and carry components: +0,5% for IG credit, +0,5% for T2 financial bonds, +0,6% for IG hybrids, +0,7% for HY corporate credit and +1,1% for AT1 financial bonds (in euros). Spreads remained stable across nearly all sectors. Real estate outperformed amid falling interest rates, along with utilities. Conversely, the automotive sector clearly underperformed (+8bp), weighed down by negative news and significant primary market supply, as did the energy sector, which was hit by falling energy prices. Primary market activity remained buoyant in June, totalling €82 billion, and slowed down less than expected in relation to May. Corporate IG issues totalled €47 billion, with a strong presence of issuers from the automotive and utilities sectors. The hybrid segment remained very active, with issues from Orange, SSE and OMV in particular. The volume of financial issues also fell from May's level to €35 billion. Nevertheless, activity is expected to slow down markedly in July, as issuers enter blackout periods ahead of their earnings releases and the summer break begins.

The structure of the bond portfolio changed marginally against a backdrop of falling rates and stable IG credit spreads.
