Key Risks Related to the Fund

There is no capital guarantee or protection of the value of the Fund. The value of your investment and the income from it can go down as well as up and you may not get back the amount you originally invested.

There is a risk that the other side to certain contracts that the Fund may enter into may not be able to meet obligations. For example, this may arise in the Fund where an investment is made using a derivative or a debt instrument, and the other side to the agreement becomes insolvent, or is otherwise unable to meet its obligations. In such a case, the Fund may incur loss.

There are additional risks relating to the use of derivatives - the Fund invests in derivatives for the purposes of both reducing exposure (hedging) and also to gain greater exposure to underlying investments. The use of derivatives can increase the possibility for profit but also increase the risk of loss.

Key Risks Related to the Share Class

Shareholders who acquire shares after commencement of a performance period may be liable for a performance fee, even where there has not been an appreciation of performance of the relevant share class during the period in which those shares were actually held. Performance fees may be paid on unrealised gains which may subsequently never be realised.

The returns from your investment may be affected by changes in the exchange rate between the Fund's base currency, the currency of the Fund's investments, your share class and your home currency.

See "Risk Factors" in the UCITS' Prospectus and Fund Supplement for more information about risks.

Commentary

In June, the Lazard European Alternative Fund (LEAF) returned +0.99% net of fees in the 'C' Acc euro share class, compared to +3.02% for the MSCI Europe Total Return Index.

Month-end gross exposure decreased slightly to 103% and net exposure decreased to 17%.

Our long book delivered +172 basis points (bps) in June. Our short book delivered -45bps, of which -42bps came from hedges and cash and -4bps came from single-name shorts. On the long side, we made +27bps in Glanbia, +24bps in MTU Aero Engines, +22bps each in Iberdrola and ASML. We lost -27bps in Halma and -22bps in Amplifon. On the short side, we gained +21bps in an electrical manufacturing company, but we lost -20bps in a financials company.

Geopolitical developments again dominated markets in Q2, culminating in a strong relief rally after the US and Iran signed an interim agreement. Brent crude prices subsequently recorded their largest quarterly decline since Q1 2020, falling 38.4%. The sharp drop in oil prices eased stagflation concerns and provided broad support to both bond and equity markets.

The S&P 500 delivered its strongest quarterly performance since the post-pandemic rebound in Q2 2020, gaining 15.2% on a total return basis. Chip stocks led the rally, with the Philadelphia Semiconductor Index surging 88.0%, marking its best quarterly performance since the index was launched in the early 1990s. European equities also posted strong gains, as the MSCI Europe Index rose 11.8% in Q2, more than offsetting the 7.8% decline recorded in March.

The debate around AI capex has shifted toward concerns that the cost of using frontier models remains too high, potentially accelerating a move toward lower-cost alternatives and, in turn, reducing datacenter spending. As a result, token prices have declined. While this could trigger a consolidation among AI enablers, we think more sustainable compute costs are ultimately likely to increase adoption rates (which remain at relatively low levels) consistent with the Jevons paradox.

The expected wave of supply from upcoming IPOs has also weighed on market sentiment. Among recent IPOs, SpaceX was at the highest price-to-sales ratio of c.94x. Historically, the higher the price-to-sales ratio at IPO, the greater the odds of long-term underperformance. Over the medium term, we expect total equity supply (driven by the SpaceX, Anthropic, and OpenAI IPOs, together with Google's $85bn capital raise) to reach $250-300bn. Matters become more complicated once lockups expire, potentially releasing substantial additional equity supply.

Mindful of these risks, we have taken some profits in our AI capex and AI enablers positions. If the Hormuz deal is upheld, a broadening out in market leadership towards cyclicals appears likely. Consumer stocks such as travel and retail could benefit, although low-income consumers are likely to benefit most, given their greater sensitivity to moves in gasoline prices.
